

Says Yankee Gave A-Bomb Material To Reds In '43

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)—Rep. McDowell (R-Pa.) declared today a "highly important man" in the government "pushed" wartime shipments of atomic bomb material to Russia.

A second official, he said, okayed the shipments.

McDowell withheld both names, but he said the two men will be asked for explanations soon in special public hearings to follow the House un-American activities committee's investigation of alleged Russian spy operations in the United States.

McDowell said that in 1943 Russia got 2,720 pounds of uranium compounds, and in 1945 about 25 pounds of uranium metal—all before the first A-bomb was dropped on Japan.

Not In Service Now

"One highly important man," he told reporters, "was pushing and shoving this thing and was finally successful in getting the Russians the stuff they wanted. This man no longer is in the government."

McDowell said he is not sure whether the second man still works for the government.

The government job of another controversial figure popped up meanwhile on the other half of the House un-American activities Russian spy double feature.

Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.), acting chairman of the group, told a radio audience last night that William W. Remington, accused of feeding war secrets into a Soviet espionage pipeline, had been fired from his Commerce Department job.

A Commerce Department spokesman promptly denied it.

Remington, placed on "indefinite leave" by Secretary Sawyer last June pending an investigation of his loyalty, was charged last week by Elizabeth T. Bentley, an admitted former Russian spy, with giving her wartime military information.

YANK DEFIES REDS TO SHOOT SUPPLY PLANES

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP)—An American Air Force official said today that "things are going to be pretty rough around here" if the Russians try to force down U. S. and British planes flying supplies to blockaded Berlin.

The official Soviet news agency ANB hinted last night that Allied planes could be forced down for flying over unauthorized areas. It charged British and American aircraft with 62 such violations between July 31 and August 4.

The American official conceded that "technically speaking" planes which violated flight violations could be forced down.

"However," he added, "once this starts things are going to be pretty rough around here. It would require some pretty high level action to say the least."

Doubt Action

The Soviet agency claimed Americans had provisions for forcing down planes which departed from prescribed routes over the U. S. occupation zone. They implied that the same could be applied over the Soviet zone routes to Berlin.

The American official said it could not be immediately determined whether the Russians were "just talking" or really intended forceful action.

Nor was it known whether the statement distributed by ANB had been forwarded to U. S. and British authorities as a formal letter of protest.

The Russians have made frequent allegations of flight rule breaches since the gigantic night and day air lift to supply western Berlin was instituted nearly two months ago. Most of them have been rejected as unfounded. American authorities have expressed the belief they were chiefly intended as harassing tactics against the air lift.

To Double Air Lift

Western Allied authorities have said the air lift will not only continue as long as needed, but will be doubled.

On the diplomatic front, Russian controlled newspapers carried on their front pages a dispatch from Washington claiming that President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall had "agreed in principle" that the Western-sponsored currency should be withdrawn from Berlin and only Soviet-sponsored money circulate throughout the city.

On the contrary the Western powers are issuing more of their money here.

PLANE WILL SPRAY TOWN ON TUESDAY

Gettysburg will get its second spraying with a DDT solution Tuesday morning, the borough council's special mosquito committee announced today, but a member of the committee warned not to expect 100 per cent effectiveness as long as mosquito-infested areas outside the borough are not sprayed.

"Unless Rock creek is sprayed, the east and south sections of town will have mosquitoes," Councilman Fred Hummelbaugh declared. "Mosquitoes which breed along the creek outside the borough can travel a mile, and can be wind-borne five miles," he said.

Arrangements were completed today with Eastern Air Activities, York, to spray the borough from the air, using an airplane to spread the DDT and oil solution over the town. The airplane will come to Gettysburg Monday night.

Start At 5 A. M.

Spraying will begin at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, Mr. Hummelbaugh said, weather permitting. There will be no spraying outside the borough limits.

Residents of Gettysburg were warned to cover fish ponds, and protect canary birds by keeping their windows closed until the spraying is completed.

Motorists should also keep their automobiles in their garages in so far as may be possible, to avoid "spotting" with the DDT solution, Mr. Hummelbaugh added. Housewives were warned not to hang out washing until after the spraying is completed.

To Use About 800 Gallons

It is expected that the spraying will be completed between 9 and 10 o'clock. All of the borough, approximately 400 acres, will be covered, using between 600 and 700 gallons of the DDT spray. This will require between five and six trips. The plane can carry about 150 gallons of spray at one loading.

Two separate contracts have been signed with the Eastern Air Activities, Mr. Hummelbaugh said, one for the spraying and one for materials. He said the total price was $2 an acre.

The town was sprayed the first time this year from the ground, by Vogel-Ritt, Inc., of Hagerstown, using a truck and spraying machine with a high compression nozzle which shot the DDT solution out in a very fine fog. The spraying was done on June 25 and 26.

Borough council on August 2 voted to have the second spraying done by airplane. Mosquitoes and flies have been on the increase in the past few days.

"Wigglers" Found

At the borough council meeting Monday night, it was reported that mosquitoes were particularly bad in the east section of town.

Mr. Hummelbaugh said he took samples Friday and found Rock creek heavily infested. The water was full of "wigglers" in the samples taken along the creek in the vicinity of Spangler's Spring, he said.

"Wigglers" were found in stagnant water on the north side of Buford avenue, opposite the Glenn L. Bream garage, but samples taken from the reservoir and from the Tiber, Winebrenner's and Culp's runs showed few or no wigglers, he said.

Give Schedule For State Police Rodeo

Maj. Thomas F. Martin, commanding the Pennsylvania state police training school at Hershey, has announced that the state police rodeo will be held next month at Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Sgt. W. Kurt Duhrkoff, in charge of the Gettysburg state police substation, is a member of the motorcycle squad of trick riders, and has been at Hershey for several weeks training with other members of the rodeo cast for the annual shows.

The latter, staged in various parts of the state each year, are for the benefit of the state police pension fund.

Shows will be given this year at Hazleton on September 17 and 18; Wilkes-Barre, September 24 and 25; and Scranton on September 29 and 30.

Littlestown TO HOLD DOLL SHOW TUESDAY AT PLAYGROUND

Clayton L. Evans, playground supervisor, has announced that there will be a doll show at the Littlestown playground on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for girls of all ages. Ribbons will be awarded for the biggest, the smallest, the oldest, the prettiest, the most expensive and the best dressed dolls. Mr. Evans hopes to be able to make announcements of the names of the judges Monday.

Organized playground programs were inaugurated at the beginning of the summer under the auspices of the Board of Education with Mr. Evans as supervisor. The number in attendance at the playground has been steadily increasing. The children have had the benefit of story telling, handwork, swimming, supervised games of all types for all ages from the youngest children up through the teen-age, and on Friday nights, dancing for the teenagers. This doll show grew out of the interest manifested in playground work. With the many types of dolls in possession of the children of Littlestown, this doll show should attract, not only many children, but the parents as well. Mr. Evans and the Board of Education hope for the same support in making this doll show a success as was manifested in making the entire playground program successful.

RED ROULETTE FATAL TO YOUTH

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 7 (AP)—A 17-year-old Valley Forge Military academy student was shot fatally last night a few moments after making a joking remark about "Russian roulette." Detectives Robert Honey and Samuel Kety reported.

Charles H. Leonard, 17, of Wilmington, died in general hospital five hours after a bullet from a .32 calibre revolver entered his right temple.

The officers said their investigation disclosed this sequence of events:

Leonard and Arthur Willey, 22, came to Willey's home last evening after finishing work at the Edgemoor iron works. Leonard telephoned a girl and made a date for the evening. Then rummaging through a drawer he found an unloaded revolver, three cartridges and a viewer for examining color picture transparencies.

Used 3 Shells

The youths had been making joking remarks about "Russian roulette"—in which a single bullet is placed in the cylinder of a revolver, the cylinder is spun and the gun then pointed at the head and the trigger pressed, with the chances 5 to 1 the hammer will fall on an empty cylinder.

Willey said he was examining some pictures when Leonard remarked "Watch this." Willey said he turned, saw the pistol discharged and his friend fall to the floor.

Chief Deputy Coroner C. Everett Kelly began an investigation. He said the gun contained one discharged and two loaded cartridges.

Leonard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Leonard said their son had just received a notice from the Valley Forge, Pa., Preparatory school to report for fall football practice.

Writing from 1 Linden avenue, Brampton, Chesterfield, Darbys, England, Anne Mitchell, who received the package, thanked the youngsters and urged someone to become a "pen-pal." The letter was delivered to Anna M. Althoff, Fairfield, teacher at the school.

Large numbers of cucumbers were offered on the market this morning, ranging from $1 per hundred to two for five cents. Beets were 10 cents a bunch, carrots, 10 cents a bunch, green beans 15 cents a quart, yellow beans, 15 cents a quart, sugar peas, 20 cents a quart and peas 15 cents a quart.

WOMAN WINS $5,000 DECISION

The Adams county court, in an opinion handed down today, decided that the story told by Mrs. Ethlyn A. Forry, Dallastown, seemed to have more elements of truth than the story told by Paul E. Jacobs, East Berlin, defendant, in the attachment execution.

As a result of that opinion Jacobs will have to pay Mrs. Forry $5,000 she claims he owes her on a note, unless he can within ten days file exceptions to the order.

The decree, signed by Judge W. C. Sheely and Associate Judges Dale Knouse and J. Price Oyler, is as follows: "It is ordered and decreed that judgment be entered in favor of Ethlyn A. Forry, claimant and against Paul E. Jacobs, defendant and garnishee. It is decreed that the prothonotary shall enter the foregoing decree as a decree nisi and that he shall give notice thereof to the attorneys of record, and that said order shall be entered as a final order unless exceptions are filed thereto within ten days of such notice."

The case involved a $5,000 note dated October 31, 1944, executed by Paul E. Jacobs, payable to Charles Altland and assigned to Ethlyn A. Forry. Mrs. Forry claims that she should be repaid the $5,000 she gave Jacobs. Jacobs claimed that he never received any money from Mrs. Forry, that actually he was "forced to sign a note" for Charles Altland which he turned over to Mrs. Forry, and that when he signed the note he assumed that the note would be cancelled against the debts owed him by Altland.

The court noted that "a most curious fact about the transaction was after Altland had threatened to accuse Paul Jacobs falsely of an attempt to burn the plant and after he had held him virtually a prisoner until he signed the note, Paul Jacobs, after receiving the keys to his own car removed the oil and left it at the ice plant."

Jacobs had claimed that he had taken oil to Altland and Jacobs Ice Plant at Brunswick, Md., and that it was there that Altland took his car keys away, and threatened to burn the plant if he did not sign the note.

South Mountain Fair Is Expected To Surpass Any Previous Exposition Here

Adams county's 25th annual South Mountain Fair should be the largest and best in history.

That was the opinion expressed Friday evening by M. E. Knouse, chairman of the Fair's executive committee, following reports of department heads at a meeting held at the fair grounds near Arendtsville.

Already the commercial exhibit, judging by present plans, will be three times the size of any previous fair, and, Mr. Knouse commented, "that makes it reasonably sure that the display will actually be four or five times larger than ever when all arrangements are completed." Other exhibits will also be larger than in former years, he added.

Reports made by various department heads Friday night showed that the work is progressing well and that most departments are expecting a record number of entries for the fair to be held September 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Rush New Building

More activities than ever before were promised by the various departments, and the fair this year "will be more representative of Adams county than any fair we have ever held," Mr. Knouse added. "The fair is Adams county's dress-up days, when we get together to find out just what we have been doing during the past year and show our neighbors from other counties all the things that Adams has been working at during the year."

The large 1,500 capacity auditorium authorized to be constructed by the fair association a few weeks ago is already well underway and Roy Heckenluber, Arendtsville, chairman of the building committee, reported that the structure will be completed by the opening of the fair September 8. Most of those attending Friday's meeting visited the site of the new structure and found that the workmen have almost completed the concrete block walls, have installed some of the metal frame windows and should soon start work on the roof and floor.

The aim of the association—to present a fair in which the educational and constructive side is stressed—should be carried out better this year than ever before, judging by the reports Friday.

Fruit Growers Day

This year the commercial entertainment—the professional dancers, singers, actors and musicians—will present their show in the evenings only. The afternoons will be given over to various organizations for programs, the association decided.

Harold Steiner, chairman of the fruit growers committee, reported that the biggest fruit growers field day in the history of the county association will be held Wednesday afternoon, September 8, at the fair grounds as part of the fair.

Invitations are being sent to fruit growers in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and throughout Pennsylvania to attend the fruit growers program, he said. Last year about 2,000 growers from the four states attended the Adams County association's field day and it is expected that the number will be increased this year, Steiner said.

Prominent Speakers

During the morning of fruit growers day there will be talks and demonstrations by State College extension specialists. During the afternoon there will be talks by Samuel Frazer, general secretary of the National Apple association, an international group extending into 40 countries; Truman Nold, secretary of the National Apple institute, and E. A. "Woody" Meyer, chief of the division of research, fruits and vegetables, of the U. S. Production and Marketing administration.

Thursday will be school day, with the Future Farmers of America and other school activities featured and with school officials scheduled to have a special program on that day. Friday will be 4-H day with the Senior Extension club and other clubs presenting a program including musical selections, a minstrel show and square dancing. Saturday will be the horse show.

The new industrial exhibit, in which is to be shown everything made by Adams county industry, is already finding difficulty in making room for all of the exhibits planned. Joseph Boyer, Arendtsville, reported on the industrial exhibit plans.

Many Exhibitors

Secretary Harvey Raffensperger reported that $3,038.05 has been turned in so far by commercial exhibitors as rent for spaces at the fair, and it was announced that the remaining spaces for commercial exhibits will be rented within the near future.

Only one department reported doubts concerning its ability to be larger than ever. John Lott, of the Sheep and Swine committee, reported that so far the difficulty has been in getting swine vaccinated in time for them to be shown at the (Please turn to Page 2)

PEACE SEEKS NEW OPENING IN PALESTINE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Even in the days of the great deluge the dove of peace found a resting place on Noah's ark, and so perhaps it isn't strange — though startling — to find her circling hopefully in search of a landing spot in the strife-torn holy land.

If anyone had predicted a few weeks ago that both Arabs and Jews today would be guardedly offering refuge to the weary bearer of the olive branch, his rating as a prophet would have hit zero. Yet the impossible has happened — and it came about like this:

On August 4 King Abdullah of Transjordan, key figure among the Arab nations at war with Israel and generalissimo of their armies in the field, declared that his country didn't "exclude any possible compromise that secures justice and prevents unnecessary bloodshed."

This was the first public statement by an Arab leader indicating a willingness to compromise.

Some Complications

The next day the government of Israel made its first direct overture for peace negotiations with the Arab states. Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok placed the proposal before Count Bernadotte, United Nations mediator, who had to pass it on to the Arabs through the U. N. The response remains to be seen.

Now of course it would be foolish to think that this necessarily means peace is just around the corner, for the bitterness between the combatants is too deep to be removed easily. However, it would be equally unwise to discard the possibilities of achieving a compromise.

The situation is complicated by the fact that the Arab nations are divided among themselves. Abdullah, who long has been a protegee of the British, stands to gain the most of all the Arab leaders in any compromise settlement with the Jews. This ripples with the rival Arab states of Egypt, Syria and Iraq, which don't want to give in to Israel.

Has Possibilities

However, Abdullah is a mighty man among the Arabs, not only because of his relations with England but because he has the most powerful army of all the Arab states — an army made possible by British subsidy and training. His will is bound to have great weight with the other Arab nations. The king has been less extreme towards the Jews than have his allies, and this fact in itself might make it easier for him personally to reach an agreement with Israel.

Many observers believe Abdullah is maneuvering for a solution which would carry out the original partition plan of the United Nations, whereby the Jews and the Arabs would have separate states. This having been done, the new Arab state might join with Abdullah's kingdom of Trans-Jordan, which itself was carved out of Palestine.

Such a program undoubtedly would meet with fierce opposition from the other Arab states, but might suit the Palestine Arabs and the new Jewish state of Israel very well. In any event, that is one of the possibilities, and it certainly would receive serious consideration, especially if Britain should give it her support.

fair. The animals must be vaccinated 30 days before the fair starts and up to Friday night less than 30 hogs had been vaccinated.

Clarence Seeman, Flora Dale, reporting for the processing committee, said that all of the county's processors are planning to take part in that exhibit and added his belief that the display will be one of the largest in the fair's history.

Huffington Resigns

The resignation of Jesse Huffington, Gettysburg R. D., as superintendent of the vegetables department was accepted with regrets and the association president, Arnold E. Orner, was directed to select a new superintendent for the committee. Huffington's resignation said that he is severing his connection with the C. H. Musselman company and moving out of the county.

David Altland, Orrtanna R. D., superintendent of the rabbit department, reported that about 150 head will be on exhibit judging by present entries.

Mrs. E. B. Romig of the flowers department reported that about 1,700 flowers are expected to be entered in that department.

The executive committee and department heads will meet again August 16 at the fair grounds to complete final plans.

The United States bluntly warned today that the Danube river will remain cut in two for traffic if eastern Europe's Communist states deny Austria a seat on the Danube control board.

Its position was laid down by American Ambassador Cavendish Cannon shortly before the Danubian conference voted 7 to 1 to make the proposed Soviet plan for a new Danube pact the basis for its discussion.

Under the Soviet plan, control of the Danube would be vested exclusively with the seven Communist dominated states of eastern Europe.

Adoption of this working operation means that the United States, Britain and France can offer their terms for the pact only in the form of amendments to the Soviet draft.

France voted against this procedure. The United States and Britain abstained from voting.

Cannon, opening today's session, declared:

"Let us be realistic about Austria. If the views of this important Riparian state are not taken into consideration in drafting the convention and Austria doesn't become a party of it, and does not immediately become a member of the commission, the river will remain cut in two."

At present, the river is cut in two at Linz, Austria, where the Russians have blocked non-Soviet shipping from moving down the river since shortly after the war ended. This has kept nearly 700 Danubian vessels—mostly barges—empty and idle in the American occupation zones of Austria and Germany.

RADIO DEBATE ON HELL AND DEVIL

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—Hell doesn't exist and "men are the only devils," declared Alexander W. Andrews, who taught Sunday school for 30 years.

But four preachers who debated the issue with him last night on an hour-long radio program maintained that Satan is more than a myth and characterized him as: 1. "That fiend," 2. "The father of sin and sinners," and 3. A being who stalks the realm of "racial intolerance, x x x or x x x a cold war."

The churchmen took to the air in response to Andrews' challenge, a half-page newspaper advertisement in which the former Methodist Bible class leader proclaimed, "these hell-and-devil ministers get my goat."

They've been deceiving us for 1900 years about these things."

Appearing with him on a broadcast over WSAL were the Rev. Robert C. Smoot, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, Baltimore; Evangelist Ben H. Atkinson,

SEEK MAN WHO BEAT GIRL, 8

Kirkwood, N. J., Aug. 7 (AP)—New Jersey police today sought a "short, skinny man" as the assailant who brutally beat an eight-year-old girl and left her unconscious in heavy underbrush 100 feet from her home.

The girl, Jacqueline Davis, was found last night by a posse of volunteer firemen six hours after she had disappeared from her home.

Police said she had been savagely beaten and left lying in underbrush near her home.

Investigators said they had only the slimmest clues to work on in their search, supplied by the girl after she was admitted to Audubon hospital in critical condition.

Police quoted Jacqueline as saying her assailant accosted her while she was walking to a playmate's home.

One of the clues provided by the child was that the man: "was wearing shoes that don't have any laces."

Firemen William Watkins and Eugene Labor found the child in the underbrush.

They said Jacqueline's eyes were blackened, her head cut and they thought she had been struck by a hit-run driver and dumped in the bushes.

At Audubon hospital the child's injuries were described as a possible skull fracture, a severely injured right eye, a severe scalp cut, multiple cuts and bruises of the entire body and shock.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ann Sartwell of Ellwood City (Lawrence county) is the new president of the Pennsylvania Grand Assembly of the Order of the Rainbow. Other officers were elected at yesterday's meeting of the Masonic-sponsored group.

Church of Christ, Sunbury, Pa.; the Rev. James L. Smiley, 83-year-old vicar of St. Anne's Episcopal church, Annapolis, and Jerry H. Simpson, Jr., theological student at Bethlehem, Pa.

The Rev. Mr. Smiley pointed out to the Bible as proof of "that fiend's existence." Andrews resorted to the Bible himself, saying it "has mentioned many times that Jesus cast out devils." Now, he added, "men are the only devils to be found."

"God has all the power needed to punish wrong-doing," he said. "He needs no assistance in the form of a devil or a place of eternal torture."

"Old Folks at Home," popular American song, earned its author, Stephen Foster, only $1,647.46 during his lifetime.

EXTRA SESSION LOST SPOTLIGHT TO SPY PROBES

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)—The strangest special session of Congress today rushed to finish up by nightfall and go home.

There never was a special session like this one, although it was the 26th in Congressional history. The first was in 1797.

It started with name-calling. Everybody expected the arguments over inflation to be the big news. But the southerners edged in and put on an almost week-long filibuster to kill an anti-poll tax bill.

Spy Hunt Stole Show

And in no time at all the big news became—and remained—a Soviet spy hunt.

The members thought they were all done for 1948 when Congress adjourned late in June. Most of them wanted to begin campaigning for their own re-election.

It staggered them when President Truman suddenly announced in mid-July he was calling them back into special session, starting July 26. Even the way that happened was different from anything that had gone before.

President Truman might have done what other Presidents have done: called the session from the dignified quiet of the White House.

Dramatic Call

He called it at 2 o'clock, one morning last month, near the end of a speech accepting the Democratic party's nomination for President at its convention in Philadelphia.

Why? To fight inflation, he said. Hadn't Congress done that before it quit in June? No, he said. He blamed the inflation on the Republican-controlled Congress. It was a startling way to begin his campaign for the Presidency.

And he already had jabbed a quivering needle into the Republican by calling this Congress the worst in history.

Fighting mad, the Republicans punched back. They said the President's call for the special session, and the way he called it, were political humbug.

But between the time he issued the call and Congress came back into session, the government produced figures showing living costs were at an all-time high.

The Republicans couldn't shrug that off, politics or no politics, although some of them—and some southern Democrats—wanted to adjourn the day the special session began.

With a week and a half of the special session gone, the Republicans surrendered to the southerners, abandoned the anti-poll tax bill and went on with other work.

Short of Demands

They finally agreed to shove through a bill on housing—not the kind Mr. Truman wanted—and a That also was less than the President wanted.

But it was the Congressional committees—one in the Senate, one in the House—which all the while were stealing the headlines.

Ex-Communists went before the committees and rattled off the names of former government employees, some of them high up, who, they said, were Communists or Communists' helpers in stealing American secrets for Russia.

Some of the Republican leaders said privately they were pretty happy that the spy hunt was taking the public's mind off the do-little Congress, at least for a while.

Mr. Truman chimed in and said the spy hunt was a "red-herring" to turn the public's attention away from what Congress wasn't doing.

NBC Checking On Give-Away Shows

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—The National Broadcasting company says it won't start any new give-away shows until it is sure they're legal.

The company made the announcement yesterday—a day after the Federal Communications Commission disclosed it was studying the legality of such shows under federal lottery laws.

NBC said it will "accept no additional programs of the type questioned" pending outcome of the commission's study.

The network said legal uncertainties arising from the Federal Communication act's ban on lotteries "have troubled the industry since its enactment," and that clarification would be welcomed.

An American Broadcasting Co. spokesman said all of its prize contests "have been examined by counsel and are in full accord with provisions of the Communications act."

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)—Pennsylvania's Democratic senator, Francis Myers, says Congress should be on a time-table — and has introduced a resolution to carry out his scheme.

Myers told the Senate in a speech yesterday that some members are "appalled" at the haste in passing bills that occurs at the close of a legislative session.

This can be avoided, he said, if the leadership of the two houses and the chairman of the standing committees agree "as soon as practical" after the start of each session on a time for consideration of each appropriation bill and other measures of "major importance."

NUDISTISTS TO POKE FUN AT CLOTHES

Mays Landing, N. J., Aug. 7 (AP)—The nudist convention at Sunshine Park winds up tonight with a fancy undress ball, and all you have to wear is a face mask.

Dr. Isley Boone, operator of the 150-acre park which has seen very little sunshine during the gathering of the American Sun-Bathing association this week, said yesterday the "whole idea will be to poke fun at clothing." Some delegates will wear various costumes from sashes to tattered garments, he added.

An election of officers also is scheduled for today, but the nominating committee covered up and refused to announce their choice for president, secretary and treasurer.

Oddly enough, buttons were one of the chief subjects of discussion at yesterday's meeting, held outdoors even though it was goose bump weather and some members hedged a bit by appearing in blankets or wearing shawls.

The national group says it has a bare 1,500 members and another 15,000 affiliated through local organizations. Boone, Mrs. Paul's organizations. Boone claims there are another 2,000,000 unorganized nudists in the nation.

He mentioned buttons in describing last night's old-fashioned party, which featured musical chairs and button, button, who's got the button.

Asked how nudists manage to play the button game, he replied: "Oh, that's simple. We can hide the button in our hands or under our armpits."

Interstate League

(By The Associated Press)

Wilmington's Blue Rocks widened their first place Interstate league lead to one and a half games last night by taking both ends of a doubleheader from Harrisburg's Senators.

Second-place Trenton, meantime, kept pace with the leaders by drubbing Sunbury 14-7.

The Allentown Cardinals, two games back of Trenton, edged Hagerstown 5-4 and increased their advantage over fourth-place York who lost to Lancaster 3-1.

Wilmington needed a six-run rally and an extra inning to win its opener and then sewed up the nightcap with two big scoring spears—five runs in the second inning and seven in the third.

Lancaster snapped a five-game losing streak behind the seven-hit pitching of Southpaw Lee Griffith.

Tonight's schedule: Hagerstown at Allentown, York at Lancaster, Sunbury at Trenton and Harrisburg at Wilmington.

CRANE CRUSHES MAN

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP)—A crane being used at a high school athletic field overturned yesterday and fatally crushed its 52-year-old operator. Police identified the victim as Roshell Holland. He was pinned beneath the cab of the vehicle.

Friday's Score
Elks, 9; Stanton Legion, 0, forfeit.

Playoffs between the four top teams of the Community Softball league for the loop championship will get underway Monday evening. It was decided at a league meeting Friday evening at the Moose home.

The Elks became the fourth place team to round out the group of title contenders by being awarded a forfeit over the Stanton Legion earlier in the evening when the latter team failed to appear for a game on the college field.

A protest lodged by Knox's Store in a game involving the Lentz Legion due to the late starting hour, was voted down at the meeting eliminating the storemen from a chance to tie the Elks.

It has been decided the league will adhere to its usual custom of staging two three-game semi-final series and one three-game final series for the championship.

The State Highway and Lentz Legion, first and third place teams, will meet in one series while the Texas Lunch and Elks, second and fourth place outfits, will clash in the other.

All games will be held on the high school field beginning Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The Highway and Legion will play Monday night, Wednesday and Friday if necessary. On Tuesday the Texas Lunch and Elks meet for the first time with the second game listed for Thursday. If a third game is needed it will be played the following week. The title series will be held the week of August 16.

ALL STARS WIN AT LITTLESTOWN

Scoring one or more runs in all but one inning, the Gettysburg Community Softball league All Stars laced the Littlestown All Stars 17-5 in a game played at Littlestown Friday evening.

The locals, managed by Ralph Johnson, Johnny Knox and Frank Moll, left little doubt as to the outcome when they pounded over nine runs in the third inning.

Gorman and Little each collected three hits in the 17-hit attack of the victors while Buckley and Bartholomew poled homeruns. Reader secured two of Littlestown's six hits.

BUCKY WALTERS IS REDS' PILOT

Brooklyn, Aug. 7 (AP)—Bucky Walters is the new manager of the Cincinnati Reds. The veteran pitcher succeeded Johnny Neun last night as the ace struck again in the National League managerial ranks.

The switch was announced by Warren Giles, club president and general manager, just before the Reds-Dodgers night game at Ebbets Field. He said Neun's contract was terminated by mutual agreement.

"Walters has been named manager for the remainder of the season," said a brief statement issued by Giles. "Limiting the term to this year was Bucky's suggestion and with a mutual understanding concerning the future."

Neun, who was a successful minor league manager in the New York Yankee farm system after his playing days were finished, became man-

Neun is the fourth National manager to receive the axe in three weeks. On Friday, July 16, Mel Ott was released as boss of the New York Giants. Leo Durocher was released as Dodger manager so he could accept the job at New York and Burt Shotton was recalled from semi-retirement to direct the Brooks. A few hours later Ben Chapman was ousted at Philadelphia.

INDIANS WIN OVER YANKEES; BROWNS NIP A'S

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Bobby Feller, the Cleveland Indians' "Mr. X," continues to be as much of a puzzle as ever to baseball fans.

Although he pitched the tribe to an important victory 9-7 over the New York Yankees last night to give the pace-setting Indians a half game advantage over the Philadelphia Athletics, the famous pitcher demonstrated that he was not the great Feller of former days.

Outside of the fact that Feller, for the sixth straight time, failed to go the distance, everything broke wonderfully for the Indians.

End Yankee Streak

First, they gained a full game over each of the three chief contenders as the Athletics were beaten by the Browns in St. Louis, 2-1, and the Boston Red Sox were nipped by the White Sox in Chicago, 4-3.

Second, they whipped an old nemesis, hanging the defeat on Ed Lopat. The Yankee southpaw, who had beaten the Tribe three out of four this year.

Third, they not only ended the Yankees' five-game winning streak, but extended their own to six in a row.

Fourth, a pair of ex-Yankees, Joe Gordon and Allie Clark, were the sparkplugs of the victory. Gordon collected three hits and a walk in four times at bat, scored four runs and batted in three with his 21st home run. Clark got a single and home run, his round tripper tying the game at 3-3 after the Yankees had opened up a 3-0 bulge in two innings.

Cards, Dodgers, Giants Gain
Feller, famous for his strikeout feats, panned only one, walked five and allowed 10 hits before he was yanked in the eighth when the Yankees scored four times in a belated attack after falling behind 9-3. It was his 11th victory of the campaign to 12 losses.

The St. Louis Cardinals, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants each gained ground as the National League leading Boston Braves dropped their fifth game in their last six starts, losing to the cellar-dwelling Chicago Cubs 5-4. The second place Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 4-1. The Cards topped the Philadelphia Phils, 6-2, and the Giants nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-4.

In an American league thriller, young Ted Gray, making his first Big league start, pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 1-0 10-inning victory over Walter Masterson and the Washington Senators. Masterson walked Hoot Evers with two out and the bases full to force over the game's only run in the last of the tenth.

A's Still Second
Lefty Bill Kennedy, with the help of Relief Pitcher Ned Garver and Outfielder Dick Kokos, gained the decision for the Browns over Phil Marchildon and the A's. Despite the loss, the A's held second place over the Yankees by four-tenths of a percentage point. Garver stopped the A's leaving two men on the bases, after they knocked Kennedy out in the eighth. Kokos drove in one St. Louis run and nailed the tying run at the plate with a perfect throw home in the eighth.

Pat Seery hammered his 15th home run of the season with two men on base in the seventh inning to give the White Sox their one-run victory over the Red Sox. The defeat left the Sox in fourth place, half a game behind the third place Yankees and one and a half lengths off the pace.

Brooklyn advanced to within three and a half games of the Braves when young Rex Barney shackled the Reds with three singles. Jackie Robinson, with his sixth home run, and a long fly, drove in three runs for the victors. The defeat spoiled Bucky Walters' managerial debut. Walters had supplanted Johnny Neun as Red manager a couple of hours before the game.

Cubs Beat Braves
The Cardinals also moved up to within three and a half games of the top. As Howie Pollet outpitched Dutch Leonard for his eighth victory, Pollet had a shaky start and surrendered two tallies in the second inning. After that he was never in trouble, scattering six hits.

The fourth place Giants climbed to four and a half games off the pace, staving off a final rally to nose out the Pirates. The Bucs shelled Ray Poat from the mound with a three-run attack.

The Cubs hopped off to a three-run first inning against the Braves' Vern Bickford and were never behind, although the Braves tied the score in the third at 4-4.

Yesterdays Stars

Batting—Pat Seery, White Sox—Slammed a home run with two on to enable the Chicago White Sox to come from behind to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 4-3.

Pitching — Ted Gray, Tigers — Permitted only six hits, walked three and struck out seven in shutting out the Washington Senators, 1-0, in 10 innings in his first major league start.

Excavations at Pompeii were started about 1748 and the city has been about half dug out of the volcanic debris that destroyed it in 79 A. D.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)

The Utica Blue Sox stretched their lead to two and a half games over the idle Scranton Miners last night in the Eastern league pennant race.

Max Peterson, Utica righthander, blanked the Elmira Pioneers, 2-0, on six hits, to run his string of scoreless innings to 21. The Miners' scheduled game at Hartford was postponed because of wet grounds.

The Binghamton Triplets upset the Williamsport Tigers, 8-5, in the second game of a double header at Binghamton, after losing the opener, 3-2.

The Albany Senators and Wilkes-Barre Barons swapped shutouts at Wilkes-Barre, with the Senators winning the first game, 2-0, and the Barons taking the 11-inning nightcap, 1-0.

Sports Roundup

By STERLING SLAPPEY

Atlanta, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ever since a bunch of Scotsmen late in the 14th century began hacking at a ball with a stick and calling their game "golfe" the sport has been aimed for the common man. But it took centuries for the little fellow in this country to get his chance.

On the long road from the somebodies to the anybodies the big historic date in the United States was 1922 and place was Ottawa Park in Toledo, Ohio.

That was the date and the locale of the first national public links golf tournament, least known of the nationals but very probably the most important to goldom's future.

Not for Little Fellow
From golf's beginning before the Revolutionary war in this country, the game was strictly for the champagne trade. Later, no one could enter any of the big tournaments unless he was a member of a private club. As a result, and partially because next to winter-time duck hunting golf is the worst of all sports for spectators, the game grew slowly.

A set of golf clubs and bag, costing from $50 to $200, the fashionable knickers and long woolen golf stockings, and the necessary pocket change for a round and caddy, were seldom owned by a working man. Besides the three or four hours necessary for 18 holes could be spent more profitably by a man or woman who had to work hard to eat.

The game for years just wasn't for the little fellow and it remained in the realm of the rich.

Cost Down, Numbers Up
But golf equipment manufacturers later saw their chance to increase sales and cheaper clubs and balls appeared. Several cities had the nerve to finance municipal courses with green fees ranging from $25 to $2 and $3. The few working men who played an occasional round solved the uniform problem themselves. They could not afford knickers and stockings so they wore everyday long pants to the horror of the club golfers. Neither could many of them afford a caddy so they carried their own bags, near treason at the nearby country club.

As the price of golf came down the number of golfers and golf courses went up.

The rapidly increasing public links golfers by then offered the industry a giant and only slightly tapped field in which to further spread the good word of the game and get to more of the vast group of Americans who loved the game but could not afford to play it at the country club.

First Meet a Success
The industry turned much of its attention to this group in pre-World War I days. In 1922 the United States Golf association also bent its head downward to the municipal player and the national public links was begun although some USGA officials closed their fingers and prayed.

In the words of James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, chairman of the first public and municipal golf courses committee, "it was a matter of great satisfaction when 140 entries were received."

Eddie Held won the first "working man's" championship that year in Toledo by defeating Dick Walsh and the meet was considered a surprisingly big success.

In 1939, 2,401 golfers made a bid for the title and in 1946 the public links broke all records with an entry list of 3,586.

Game for Middle Class
This year in Atlanta the title was won by Mike Ferentz, a pint sized bartender from Long Beach, Calif. In the tournament were minor Hollywood movie stars, gas station workers, glass blowers, bowling alley operators, caddies, greens keepers, welders, steel mill workers, truck drivers, mechanics, policemen and whatnots.

Their occupations were a far cry from vocations of golfers of 25 to 50 and 100 years ago who played in other nationals and in club soires.

Golf, although still a game for the rich, also has become a game for the middle class. And that is why each year the USGA runs off the giant public links tournament.

The game is no longer strictly a club sport, the pastime of rich men and their sons and daughters, and the main reason it isn't, is America's 750 municipal courses and the national public links tourneys.

DECATHLON IS WON BY MATHIAS FOR UNCLE SAM

Olympic Pool, Wembley, England, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ann Curtis of San Francisco won the women's Olympic 400-meter free style swim championship today, beating Denmark's favored Karen Margrethe Karup in the finals.

Olympic Pool, Wembley, England, Aug. 7 (AP)—Philadelphia Joe Verdeur continued the American men's sweep of Olympic swimming and diving events today by winning the 200-meter breast stroke championship, the seventh straight victory by the United States men.

Keith Carter of Purdue university placed second to the 22-year-old Philadelphian and Bob Sohl of the University of Michigan was third for an American sweep of all three breast stroke medals.

Verdeur set a new Olympic record of 2:39.2 for the breast stroke, beating the mark of 2:40 he made in the heats of the water program that ends today. The old Olympic record was 2:42.5, set by Tetsuo Hamuro of Japan at Berlin in 1936.

By TED SMITS
Olympic Stadium, Wembley, England, Aug. 7 (AP)—Two completely unorthodox athletes stand out today as the track stars of the 1948 Olympic games.

One is Bob Mathias, the American high school boy who won the decathlon. At 17 years of age he beat the world's toughest all around competitors.

The other is Holland's Fannie Blanker-Koen, who is the first woman ever to win three Olympic championships. And she did it although she is 30 years old and the mother of two children. Her third gold medal came in the 200 meter dash, which she won yesterday, just as everyone knew she would.

Mathias had to plod through rain and darkness from 10:30 a. m. until 11:15 p. m. to snatch the decathlon title away from a mighty field of 37 that finally dwindled down to 28.

While young Bob was fashioning the victory that brought the total of American track and field championships to nine, pretty Victoria Maalo Draves of Pasadena, Calif., won her second diving championship. She is the first woman to do this in Olympic history. She added the high platform title to her previous springboard crown.

The women's 400-meter relay swimming team, sparked by powerful Ann Curtis, won America's first water racing championship in the female division of these games by defeating Denmark and Holland in the new record time of 4:29.2.

Stack Wins Backstroke
Allen Stack of Yale won the fifth straight men's swimming race—the 100 meter backstroke—to bring the United States close to a clean sweep of firsts in this sport.

Two U. S. crews—the pairs with and without coxswains — were knocked out of the rowing regatta, but otherwise the Stars and Stripes continued to wave brightly despite the London weather.

Never has a decathlon finished more dramatically than this one.

Big steady Ignace Heinrich of France stuck to second place all along. Because of a lucky pole vault draw he was able to finish his ordeal around 7:00 p. m. with an imposing total of 6,974 points. Mathias was still pole vaulting and had the javelin and 1,500 meter run still ahead.

Never Gets Jitters
The young Californian, who stands six feet, 1½ inches, and who weighs 193 pounds, is no distance runner. He knew if he were to win he must pile up enough points in the pole vault and javelin to compensate for a slow 1,500 meters.

So with iron nerves—friends say he never has the jitters—he kept on vaulting despite the rain and darkness. He finally soared over at 11 feet 5½ inches for 692 points. By then he had 6,192 points, 165 ahead of what Heinrich had when he finished the pole vault.

But night was wearing on. "I'm so tired," Bob groaned. "I don't know if I'll be able to run 1,500 meters in six minutes."

In the decathlon a man is graded on the basis of 1,000 for a perfect performance, and a six minute 1,500 would have been fatal.

A Tired Worn Boy
So Bob gritted his teeth and threw the javelin a mighty 165 feet 1 inch for 593 points. Now things looked safe.

The runners took their positions on the far side of the track, scarcely visible in the gloom. The gun

BENDERSVILLE BOWS TO ACES

The Gettysburg Aces tabbed five runs in the fourth inning to gain an 8-4 decision over Bendersville of the Adams County league in a benefit game for Merle Baumgardner, Bendersville player, Friday evening at Bendersville. Baumgardner is a patient at the Warner hospital as the result of injuries received in a game last Saturday.

Gene Hummel paced the Aces' nine-hit assault with a double and triple while Jack Love rapped three singles.

The victory marked the 16th in 18 starts for Coach Harpster's team, one game ending in a tie.

On Monday evening the Aces will play at Orrtanna and next Friday are listed to meet Bendersville in a return game here.

NEXT WEEK

If we could only get rid of the fear that we imagine is all centered in Next Week, we would certainly be on the broad road to a destination of peace and plenty. But what a bogey this Next Week is! It's like a bogey that nobody has ever seen, for when that Next Week arrives it's no longer that but the present, which we have to handle anyway in the best possible way we know — and we do just that.

Next Week is but the prototype of Fear. So why borrow on it? We may have to pay double its price!
For fear always comes high — in loss of confidence, health, and happiness.

It rains Next Week, when it comes.
Well, what of it? It has rained before in our lives and we have learned how to handle it — we have umbrellas, rain coats and shelters. We can do nothing about it because we are not in the weather business. But we can arm ourselves with courage and confidence, and do our job today, knowing that if it is well done, Next Week will take care of itself.

Fear is about the heaviest burden that any human being can carry.
It weighs down everything else — especially efficient service. No one can do his best with fear gnawing at his heart. With fear around there is always its side-kick — worry. The insurance companies do not publish a list of casualties from worry—but the list could be amazing. Most of them happen in Next Week.

How many of the things that we contemplate doing Next Week do we actually ever do, when that Next Week arrives? The percentage is certainly small. What a wonderful time this Right Now is, anyway!
We can do so much in it. We can be constructive so that we will have no fear of any Next Week.

What an inspiring and comforting prayer that each of us may offer daily to God: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee." The banker makes money by giving interest away on the amount entrusted to him. How much greater is the profit that a human being can accumulate by giving himself away — in unselfish acts and kindnesses, in encouragement to others, and through an abiding faith.

TURN DEAF EAR TO APPEAL FOR OCT. 1 MILK RISE

A ug. 7 (P)—A deaf ear wasture

Harrisburg, Aug. 7 (P)—A deaf ear was turned today to pleas by dealers and producers for an automatic one cent a quart retail milk price boost October 1 on top of the cent and a half planned for about August 18.

"Definitely, we will not write into these new orders anything calling for another price increase October 1," said John J. Snyder of the State
Milk Control commission.

Snyder told a reporter he also spoke for Charles J. O'Loughlin, the other member of the majority which spiked an original proposal to hike prices 2½ cents a quart August 16 in 12 milk marketing areas.

Prepare New Orders
Snyder started a busy week-end of preparing the new orders with the help of commission statisticians.
The job, he said, will take several days.

"We should have the orders in shape by Tuesday or Wednesday," he said. "That will give us time to make the new prices become effective August 18."

The law requires six days' notice after the posting of the orders before they become in effect.

The majority decision defies a compromise suggested by dealers and producers with the concurrence of commission Chairman H. N. Cobb who said at the close of two days of price conferences yesterday.

"If the dairy industry thinks it can get along on 1½ cents until October 1, with an additional one cent beyond that, I will sign such an order—once I am convinced that is what the dairy industry is agreed on."

Cobb's Position

By inference, he indicated he would not sign the Snyder-O'Loughlin majority orders. Cobb insisted throughout the acrimonious sessions that the higher increase was backed up by testimony taken at a series of hearings across the state on the cost of producing and distributing milk.

The majority proposal will boost prices to 21½ and 22 cents, with farmers receiving 40 cents more a 100 pounds (46½ quarts).

Both this and Cobb's proposal provide 20 cents more a 100 pounds for dealers but Cobb's discarded plan would have resulted in new retail prices of 22½ and 23 cents a quart and increases to farmers of 80 cents a hundred pounds.

Littlestown

Littlestown—A good sized crowd of spectators were present Friday night on the Littlestown ball diamond to see the All-Star Softball contest between Gettysburg and Littlestown All-Stars, when Gettysburg defeated Littlestown by a score of 17 to 5.

The Littlestown Bankers softball team defeated the Furniture Factory on Friday night at Crouses by a score of 3 to 2. Because of the Littlestown Firemen's carnival next week, all soft ball contests for the week will have to be played at Crouses. The game scheduled for Monday night is Crouses versus the Bankers.

Wednesday night was advancement night for Littlestown Boy Scout Troop No. 84, meeting in the scout headquarters in the basement of the Littlestown State bank building. Dean Sell was advanced to the rank of first class scout; Robert Snyder, Edwin Lippy, Richard Collins and John Jacobs were advanced to the rank of second class scouts, while William Benner and Elven Chronister became Tenderfoot scouts. The Cheyenne Patrol received the 100 per cent attendance banner for Wednesday night's meeting. Merit badges were awarded to the following: Charles Brown,

28TH DIVISION TO TRAIN AS DEFENSE UNIT

Harrisburg, Aug. 7 (P)—Pennsylvania's own 28th Infantry Division is out today to justify its selection as an integral part of a new continental defense mobile striking force.

Major Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, Lancaster, said today he is outlining plans for his troops' training proficiency in preparation for a two-week encampment at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation August 14-28.

Some 10,000 officers and men representing 129 units from all over the state will participate in division maneuvers in addition to other separate components of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Stress Varied Training
Strickler's schedule will stress more varied and advanced training in comparison to last year's first postwar encampment. All fields will be self-sustaining in the out, including operation of individual mess.

Eighty-eight hours' instruction are scheduled, including 44 hours of basic and general subjects, 24 hours technical and 20 hours tactical. A two-and-a-half-day march and bi-firing ranges.

All enlisted men also will take eight hours of individual type proficiency tests on basic subjects.

The committee system of instruction again will be followed this year with each regiment responsible for specific subjects.

The 110th Infantry, Washington, will handle all field instruction in combat formations; the 112th, Erie, chemical warfare; the 111th, Phila-turbances and martial law; the 109th, Scranton, interior guard and combat sentry duty, military sanitation, first aid and hygiene; and division artillery, Philadelphia, maps

A rookie school covering 16 hours' training in basic military funda-mentals also will be conducted for all recruits without previous military experience. The course includes six hours of drill and the manual of arms, and three hours' guard duty.

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Member S. C. E.

Judging from the silly tunes that come on the car's radio we would as soon face the music as listen to it.

When Brakes Fade Out

It probably has been going on for some time but few owners have stopped to consider just what happens when the brakes are overworked on long downgrades. The complaint is that the brakes fade badly so that the driver is forced to use a lower gear, which he should have used anyway. What isn't generally known is that some of this fade is due to the brake fluid actually boiling in the individual brake cylinders. So much heat is generated by the brake shoes rubbing against their drums that the fluid can't remain cool. The rest of the fade is due to the drums expanding away from their shoes.

Let Them Rotate

Since a poppet valve is round it naturally follows that if it is allowed to rotate at will while in operation it will always seat better. You remember that in the days when we used to grind our own, we always seated valves by giving them a rotational movement, first this way, then that. Latest in valves, naturally enough, is a special cap which attaches to the valve tip to replace the conventional valve spring retainer. Thus the valve is assured positive rotation at all engine speeds, this simple fact checking blow-by, warping, burning, pitting and stickage.

Due to the constant wiping action of the turning valve the face and the seat are kept free of carbon and other deposits. You know what this means in terms of compression and power.

The new valve caps will probably be appearing on the 1949 models.

Of This and That

You can buy what is known as rubber paint for floorboards and running boards. It is also useful on black sidewall tires. Don't smoke while applying it as it has a highly volatile agent.

One of the new cars has the gas tank on the left side of the frame's rear where the tail pipe is less likely to overheat it.

When you are adjusting the car's idling mixture be sure the engine is running with the throttle fully closed to the idling point. A good way to make sure of this is to press down on the accelerator pedal and let it snap back to the off position.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"If more car owners realized how much power is lost through the certain parts of the car which are not usually seen as having anything to do with keeping it in motion they would spend more time seeing that the springs and shock absorbers are in good shape.

"Because of bouncing on rough roads, the wheels are forced to compress the springs and shock absorbers more times per mile. Rusty, dry springs present more than the usual resistance, and so do shock absorbers that are out of whack. Also when these parts are not working properly the car rides badly, and the wheels have to exert a lot of additional power to overcome secondary movement of the car's body. Behind the driving wheels, of course, is the engine which has to work harder every time there is disturbance in their rolling."

Still Needs Pampering

While the modern engine may seem to be a giant of power it is still quite a sensitive affair, ready to go into a dither if something relatively minor goes wrong. Perfect example is the way it will overheat just because its fan belt is slipping. Time was when this would not make so much difference because the water pump was gear driven, but now that water pump's drive from the same belt that operates the fan any slippage has a double effect on the cooling system.

It is a lot harder to keep things tight on a modern motor because it wiggles so much in its flexible mounting. It is most easily stalled. And it's particularly fussy about ignition timing. Inside its distributor there are little pigtail wires which can, and do, give complete engine failure if they break inside their insulation.

Tips For Traffic

Passing to the right of another car at an intersection, if you plan making a right turn, may seem safe enough but I have seen cars get jammed against the curb when the driver to the left suddenly decided to make a right turn instead of going straight ahead.

I like the rule of a friend who never approaches an intersection with his foot on the accelerator. His foot is always poised on the brake, the car taking the intersection on accumulated momentum.

Basic But Puzzling

There has been a lot of discussion about how best to warm up an engine which is equipped with an automatic choke, recognizing the fact that it is always dangerous to step right out into the traffic stream unless the engine is warmed enough to forestall a hazardous stall. Some drivers have found that letting the engine idle just causes it to load up. Rather than invite this condition they have been accepting the alternative of taking a chance on getting into traffic with the engine hardly more than cold.

The logical way out is to let the engine fast idle. Sit at the wheel when you have backed out of the garage and keep the engine running at a speed about normal idling. Occasionally accelerate the engine to clear it. This little trick provides a good warming up without overchoking.

Exception, Not Rule

Some of these days we'll all learn that when we hear of what seems to be a clever test we may find that it doesn't apply generally. One example is the trick of testing the efficiency of the vacuum spark control's diaphragm by closing the choke valve while the engine is running. Under such conditions the distributor is supposed to rotate a little. U. M. L. tried this, found that the distributor didn't move and decided that the diaphragm had gone bad. It proved to be a poor guess for on his car the spark control just moves the breaker plate base.

The Spice of Motoring

The fact that some car makers ground the positive post of the battery rather than the negative just serves as a reminder that engineers have different ways of doing things and that it is important when doing any work on a car to have complete instructions for that particular make and model. In fitting piston pins, for instance, it is necessary to know if it should be made with a hot or cold piston. You might get what seems to be a perfect thumb push fit of a pin while a piston is at room temperature, yet perhaps on the car in question the piston should be colder or warmer, it is necessary to know if widely on different cars.

What's On Your Mind?

Q. Do warped valves act the same as sticky valves? I am not sure just what the situation is in the engine of my car, and would like to know your views on this?—G. N., Jr.

A. A good test is to try a generous oiling with special valve lubricants and solvents. Sticky valves will respond to such treatment, but warped valves are unaffected.

Q. Why does the engine stall in wet weather?—W. M. M.

A. There are various possibilities. Sometimes it is due to external leakage of high tension current. Often the mixture is wrong. Doesn't this usually happen when the engine is in process of warming up? Moisture on the tops of the spark plugs would do this.

Q. The generator of my car sometimes fails to charge. When this happens I always check the belt but never find it slipping. There are periods when charging is quite normal.—H. E. B.

A. I think you should check the brushes. One of them may be jumping off the commutator. This is likely to be the case if the latter is eccentric. Make sure that the brushes (Please turn to Page 6)

Wherever you go, they're talking DYNAFLOW

FROM Atlantic to Pacific, it's simply terrific.

Not in a generation — maybe not in two — has any single improvement in automobiles caused the talk or met the instant approval that has greeted this new drive.

You see the reason in your first five minutes behind a Dynaflo* wheel.

You sense that this is not merely an improvement on old ways, but a whole new system of transferring power from your engine to the rear wheels.

For the first time, oil does everything — replaces the friction clutch, eliminates the usual forward gears, even actuates the mechanism by which you change from Driving range to emergency Low and Reverse.

You feel the result in new smoothness that's like riding a mighty tide of flowing oil.

You move from standstill to road speed in one smooth unbroken sweep of power, quick and effortless in getaway and instantly responsive at speed.

You stop by pressing the foot-brake — go again by feeding gas. Once you've set the selector lever, you need not touch it again in normal driving until you're ready to park or back up.

Outside engineers look at Dynaflo and say, "Now you've got something!"

You'll say so too — once you

A MAN IN THE HOUSE

By Florence Stuart

AP News Features

Chapter 19

Jane put out the lights almost immediately and went upstairs. Odd, how a session with Aunt Mae wore her out. After an hour she was more exhausted than by a day's housework. She went straight to the bedroom.

She was sitting before the dressing table brushing her hair when Carl came in. She grinned at him through the mirror. "Hi, darling. I'm a wreck. Aunt Mae was here. Did you hear her downstairs?"

Carl nodded. "I heard her." "I do believe you were eavesdropping," Jane teased him. "It seems that your office, after hours, has an irresistible attraction for the brilliant Miss Talbot. Darling," she said gaily, "would you like a divorce so you could make an honest woman of the little pest?"

Carl glanced at her, and he was not amused. "Jane," he said soberly, "I don't care for all this loose talk about Helen Talbot. You and I know that it doesn't amount to anything. However, talk like this which seems to be going around can put her in a very false light, give her a black eye. First they'll have it that she's man-crazy. Then it will grow into something worse. I don't like it. It worries me."

Jane put down her brush and turned to look at him with curious intentness. "Oh, I wouldn't take it to heart, Carl," she said lightly. "You know how people talk. I suppose Helen will survive it. Anyway," she smiled, "she is a little crazy about you. Surely you understand that."

"I wish you wouldn't talk that way about Helen," Carl said impatiently, and he looked troubled. "It's untrue, it's a wrong attitude, and I don't like it."

It was right then that something happened to Jane. Something seemed to break inside her. A dream, a faith, an illusion of loveliness which she had been clinging to despite every threat to it—She had never felt that way before.

Because it was all so real to her, as real as the impact of a sudden knockout blow, she said the words that demanded to be said: "Carl, don't you love me any more?"

He stared at her, and after a split-second he laughed. "Well, sure I love you," he said cheerfully. "You know how much I love you, honey. But you don't expect me to keep telling you about it every minute, do you?"

"No, Carl, I don't expect that," Jane smiled faintly. "Well, then," he shook his head, grinning ruefully. "Women are funny," he said. "And being a woman, I suppose you can't help running true to form. If I don't tell you every 30 minutes or so that I love you, you begin to imagine that I've stopped loving you. Although why you should start questioning my feeling for you when I was talking about this unkind talk about Helen Talbot—"

So Jane told him. She told him with her eyes flashing and her voice shaken, because suddenly she was so angry she couldn't see straight.

She said: "You seem to have heard most of what Aunt Mae said, and nine-tenths of it had to do with your wife, what people are saying about me. But none of that seems to have impressed or worried you in the least. It doesn't seem even to have registered. All that concerns you is that Helen Talbot's name is being bandied about a bit unpleasantly, that people are saying she has a crush on teacher, not so terrible, at worst. But you don't seem to care if they call me a little cheat," she finished inadequately.

Carl laughed. "Well, to tell you the truth, baby, I don't care too much. Because it's too ridiculous. I know it isn't true, so why should I get all steamed up about it?"

He took her in his arms then, kissed away the angry tears that were moist on her cheek, and smiled down into her eyes. "I love you, dearest," he murmured. "And I have complete trust in you. That's all that's important, isn't it?"

But how can he be so sure? Jane was asking herself.

Jane lay awake long into that night, building up sickening doubts, laying one upon another like bricks in a wall, searching her mind and imagination for confirmation and proof of each new doubt and uncertainty as it came to her, ending up by half convincing herself that her marriage was headed for the rocks and that if Carl's love wasn't already gone, it was going fast.

And when she woke in the morning, almost her first thought was: I'll make him jealous if it's the last thing I do.

Jane, in short, decided to give her husband plenty to worry about. She'd give him the works. She'd make him worry, if carrying on an outrageous flirtation with Ted before his eyes would do the trick. I don't want to hurt Carl, she said to herself, and for a moment she melted with tenderness at the very thought of him. I don't want to get him upset for no reason, I honestly don't.

But on the other hand, he might not be hurt or upset. He might simply not give a darn. And that's what she had to find out. She simply had to know.

It was a dangerous game, but she didn't stop to think about that.

Chapter 20

It never occurred to Jane that she herself was jealous. Jealous of Carl's absorption in his work, his sense of duty toward all of his students and especially those, such as Helen, who required special assistance from him.

She wanted to come first with him in everything, at all times, had always wanted that without thinking very much about it. Aunt Mae had started her thinking, had aroused vague dissatisfactions and this new, painful distrust of the basic perfection of her marriage. Had stirred strange, new doubts and brought her and Carl to the point of ugly quarreling.

Jane, not being one to analyze her own emotional reactions, was confused and unhappy without knowing the real basis for her confusion and unhappiness.

It was simple, easy, to pin it all down to one concrete thought: If he still loves me I can make him jealous of me.

It was childish to say to herself, simply because Carl had not the inclination to indulge in a perpetual courtship, play the perennial wooer, continue the preliminaries of marriage after three years of marriage: He is falling out of love with me.

But Jane did say it, think it more than was wise or good for her. And inevitably on the heels of that despairing doubt came its malicious, sly little mate: Maybe he never did love me as much as he pretended.

Meanwhile Carl went about his daily affairs much as usual, except that suddenly his burden of responsibility doubled. Old Dr. Ross, long in failing health, came down with pneumonia.

For the time being, Carl was acting head of the English department. This meant doing the work of two men at a time when there was a shortage of teachers and each man was already doing more than his share.

He was beginning to be troubled about his relations with his wife, more so than he had revealed to her. It was not the business of Ted Eggleston which concerned him especially.

What bothered him was the thought that perhaps he was not the kind of man to make Jane permanently happy.

This was an entirely new idea to him and had he allowed himself to dwell upon it he would have become deeply unhappy, unfit to carry on the work that had to be carried on.

However, he could not avoid thinking about it at odd moments. He had known when he married Jane that she was a gay, delightfully spoiled fun-loving girl.

With marriage she had seemed to grow up. Had acquired dignity, poise. Had, indeed, seemed to acquire new qualities blended with the old, which made her more charming than ever. She made a lovely hostess, and an equally charming guest when they attend faculty doings of one sort or another.

Everyone connected with the faculty liked Jane. She was friendly without overdoing it.

All this—until so very recently. The change had come so suddenly that for a time Carl did not sense what was happening. Jane became quarrelsome, ready to pick him up about little things. That nonsense about Helen Talbot and their evening in Washington. Once Jane would have paid no attention to anything so trivial. Aunt Mae, confused the woman, had had her hand in it, of course.

Little things. Always little things. If they could have had a real, healthy quarrel over some important issue, it might have cleared the atmosphere.

He could not, would not blame the change in Jane on Ted's arrival in their home. To do so would be, among other things, to accuse Jane of cheapness, of something ugly and almost unclean. It would be to side with the gossip of whom Aunt Mae was The Voice. "Have you heard? Carl Whittier's wife has a case on their GI roomer. According to what I hear—"

No, Not Jane. He couldn't bring himself even to think such things about her. And so he fell back on reasoning that went deeper and was in the end, more hopeless. Perhaps he should never have married her. She was, essentially, such a gay, dancing flame of a girl. And to bury her in the life of a professor's wife, to sentence her to live out her days in the quiet, uneventful ways to which a scholar must necessarily dedicate himself.

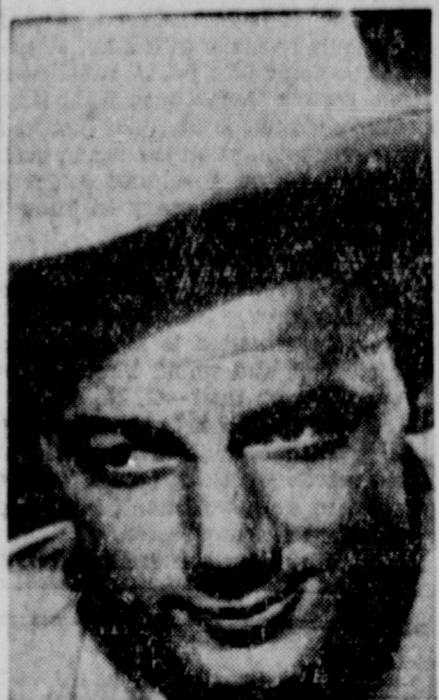

It was no wonder if she was getting bored, if she was suddenly reverting to the gay, excitement-loving, extrovert type of girl she had been when he married her. It was no wonder if she was getting tired of him. It had been too much to expect that she would stay contented, forever.

They made no attempt, either of them, to talk all this out. Which was a pity.

Had they brought their secret, gnawing doubts into the open, given them a thorough airing, the atmosphere might have been cleared, misery and unhappiness avoided.

Instead, their thoughts and growing doubts went their separate ways. Jane told herself bleakly: Maybe he's stopped loving me. Maybe he never did love me. . . . And she

Her operation is expected to be permanently successful although she must return to the hospital within a few weeks for further observation. During her

Carl wondered if perhaps it had been unfair ever to marry her. Perhaps the marriage was doomed in its very inception. He withdrew more and more into himself, and into his work.

The days flowed along, and Jane and Carl grew more and more apart, until there were times when to each of them it seemed almost as if they were strangers living together. . . .

MOTHER OF FOUR IS GIVEN DEGREE

Pittsburgh, Aug. 7 (AP)—A 32-year-old mother of four children finally graduated from Duquesne university—but it took her 13 years.

In between the years of night school study and the diploma she received yesterday, dark-haired Mrs. Virginia Geary worked as a stenographer, married a young law student and did housework and baby-planned.

Proudest of the graduation spectators was Mrs. Geary's four-year-old son, Kelvin. The 11-month-old twin girls and Mark, 8, stayed at home.

"Mark said he'd rather play tiddley-winks," the mother with the new bachelor of science degree explained.

Mrs. Geary said she hopes someday to work in foreign trade. But—not for a while.

"I'm going to concentrate on raising my family," she says.

MOSCOW TALKS WILL CONTINUE

stay in the hospital she was visited by her sister, Miss Mildred Haar, and a group of her former school-mates at the local high school. The Haars entertained a party of Carlisle relatives over the past weekend.

The W. Gladfelter family have moved from York county to the former Emory W. Sell property south of town which they purchased in the spring. The Sells built the house for themselves last year, and are now erecting another on Harrisburg street. They are staying at the Zwingle Reformed parsonage pending the new home's completion.

The Ditzler family, Biglerville, recently purchased a cottage at Mummer's Grove, R. 2, from Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dillman, Gettysburg, who had had the place in this area for some time.

night that additional meetings will be held before any final agreements materialize.

This informant said a conference today is unlikely and a meeting tomorrow seems more probable.

The United States, British and French envoys conferred with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov yesterday for three hours. Prime Minister Stalin was not present.

At this meeting, U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau, and Frank Roberts, special British envoy, gave Molotov their reply on Berlin and other questions.

It was learned on excellent authority that the talks with Molotov are proceeding smoothly.

The western envoys emerged smiling from their conference with the Soviet foreign minister. They drove to the American embassy where they compared notes and ideas.

(London diplomatic circles expressed belief that the three Western powers had submitted specific questions to Molotov which they believed should be discussed at a new four-power conference on Berlin, Germany and perhaps Europe.)

Q. Why is it necessary to toe in front wheels? I have put this question to a number of motorists but have never received a helpful reply.

A very important meeting of the Ocker-Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion was held Thursday evening in the post home, East King street, in charge of Commander Ralph Ruggles, Jr. The building committee consisting of Clarence J. Krichen, Sr., Stanley B. Stover, William J. Yingling, Wilbur E. Mackley and Francis J. Willis presented the plans for the proposed new post home. After a discussion, the plans were accepted by the membership.

This new post home will be erected on the Legion's recently purchased lots on Charles street. The committee expects to begin the erection of the new home as soon as possible. As planned, it will contain an auditorium, a canteen, a game room, an office, rest rooms, a kitchen and a cold room. The building will be of brick and concrete block construction and will be modern in every respect.

The post voted to hold their annual stag picnic at a time and a place to be announced at the next meeting. Clarence J. Krichen, Sr., Robert Gouker, Plus Pautenis and Joseph Long comprise the committee on arrangements.

Nominations of officers for the year 1948-1949 were made at this meeting. Additional nominations

VFW Auxiliary Meets
Mrs. Louise Sentz, president, was in charge of the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, VFW, in the post home, West King street on Thursday night. One new member, Ruth Dooley, was elected to membership. She, together with Ruth Newman, who was elected at the last meeting, was initiated. Elva Weaver presented the secretary's report and Malva Dutera, the treasurer's report.

A contribution of $5 was voted by the Auxiliary toward the field day which will be held on September 7 at the Veterans' hospital at Coatesville.

Miss Helen Wisotzky and Mrs. Ottilie Weaver, who were delegates to the national encampment held at Pittsburgh, July 7 to 10, presented their report. During the encampment, the local delegates were presented with a white Bible for the Auxiliary by the membership chairman of the Department of Pennsylvania. This award was given because the local unit met the membership quota for the year 1947-1948. The next meeting will be held in the post home, Thursday, September 2.

USSR RELAXES ONEROUS MONEY BLOCKADE RULE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

They say that little straws show how the wind blows, but one takes the liberty of doubting whether the course of the straw is very helpful in the case of whirlwinds.

Thus it is with cautious interest that we note some easing of the economic quarrel between Russia and the western allies. From Moscow comes word that reliable sources say there is a good chance for "an agreement" between the warring nations. On top of that we get the Russian authorities' surprising move in relaxing their onerous financial blockade of western Berlin for the present.

This financial blockade, by the way, is distinct from the food blockade, although the latter was imposed because of the financial quarrel between the Soviet and the western allies. Some weeks ago the democracies made a new issue of German marks for their three zones, which previously had been dependent on the Soviet currency.

Had Been Outlawed
The Russians promptly outlawed the money in the American, British and French areas of Berlin on the claim that the capital is part of the Soviet zone—an assertion which the democracies dispute. The Muscovites also blocked the Russian mark accounts of the anti-Communist city government, as well as accounts of some business houses.

The result of this financial blockade has been to deprive both government and business of funds to meet commitments. The situation was becoming serious when yesterday out of the blue the Soviet authorities released blocked funds to enable the city government to meet its week-end engagements. Similar arrangements were made with business houses. Charles Gifford, British finance officer in Berlin, explained the surprising Soviet move thus:

"They apparently did not want to bring things to a head in Berlin while negotiations were going on elsewhere" (meaning Moscow).

Why The Change?
Well, supposing this does explain the Russian concession, we still want to know just why Moscow should suddenly decide to consider "an agreement" with the democracies. We know that the Soviet Union hasn't the slightest idea of abandoning its world revolution for the spread of Communism. Why then should she even consider a truce? It strikes me that there are two prime reasons:

1. There is discontent and disaffection among Moscow's satellite bloc of eastern Europe. That is quite evident in countries like Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Poland.

2. Russia and her Red bloc are being squeezed economically because of the division of Europe into two camps. And of course, western Europe is being squeezed, too, for these great areas are interdependent. They need an exchange of raw materials, foodstuffs and manufactured articles. In fact the economic experts maintain that it would be impossible to rehabilitate Europe fully so long as the iron curtain exists. That, by the way, is one of the difficulties of making the Marshall plan fully efficient.

Moscow must have realized this long ago, but the Bolsheviks had hopes of making a quick political conquest of the continent. Had that been successful, there would have been no iron curtain and it would have been possible to achieve a great measure of economic rehabilitation.

However, it is a sad fact that Europe is slashed in two. But time is running against the Bolshevik revolution. It is a safe guess that Moscow is playing with the idea of a truce in order to relieve the economic tension on her discontented satellites and herself.
